

District and Region Explanation

Each community college belongs to a district. Some colleges belong to a single-college district, while others may have one or more sister colleges. Community colleges have also been assigned to regions as part of the California Community Colleges Chancellor's Office Strong Workforce Program. Regions can refer to either seven macroregions or ten microregions.

Macroregions

- Bay Area
- Central Valley-Mother Lode
- Inland Empire-Desert
- Los Angeles-Orange County
- North-Far North
- San Diego-Imperial
- South Central Coast

Microregions

- East Bay
- Greater Sacramento
- Inland Empire
- Los Angeles
- Mid-Peninsula
- North Bay
- Northern Central Valley-Mother Lode
- Northern Coastal
- Northern Inland
- Orange County
- San Diego-Imperial
- Santa Cruz-Monterey
- Silicon Valley
- South Central Coast
- Southern Central Valley-Mother Lode

District and regional groupings de-duplicate redundant records. For example, a student may attend multiple colleges within a district or region. In the district or regional dashboard view, the student would only appear once. This means that if you added up data for each college within a district or region, the number of students may be lower than the sum of each college's students.

The following pages show the microregion, macroregion, and district designations for each college, as well as college listings by macroregion and microregion.
